THE YAQUI INDIANS

At Least Twelve Ranchers and Several Women Killed by Them.

RESCUE PARTY STARTS

To Save Other Unfortunates Whose Lives are Threatened by the Blood Thirsty Redskins.

DREAD NEWS BROUGHT TO TUCSON.

Tucson, Ariz., June 28. — At least twelve ranchers and several women and children met death at the hands of hundred Yaqui Indians who have been raiding the country along the San Miguel river in the Ures district of Sonora, and a party composed largely of American mining men, headed by Joseph DeWitt, has gone out from Pozo station to rescue the unfortunates who are in danger of being massacred by the Indians.

Dr. Frank J. Touissant, who has returned from Ures, brought the news of the trouble, which began last Friday. After several families had been murdered by the Indians, ranchers made a determined stand at Buenos Ayres ranch, where, aided by thirty employes, they succeeded in repulsing the Indians, although Jesus Ortonno, proprietor of the place, his brother, Francisco, Luis Carranza, proprietor of an adjoining ranch, and several other neighbors, died from wounds received in the fight.

Dr. Touissant attended Carranza, who was brought into Lachumata, a mining town, near where the fight took place. Beseiged Mexicans took refuge in a ranch house and fought from the windows and roofs. It is thought that fully twenty Indians were killed, although the number can only be estimated, as the savages carried off the dead and wounded when they retired.

The nearest armed force is stationed at Ures and when Dr. Touissant left Hermosillo they had been sent to the scene of the outrages. Five Yaquis, taken just outside of Lachumata, and thought to have taken part in the massacres, were immediately hanged.

Mother of Triplets Only 17 Years Old.

Triplets whose combined weight is 25 pounds were born to Mrs. Mary Wainright, who weighs but 105 pounds herself and is only 17 years old. It is said that the birth of three babies of such weight to so small and young a mother is without precedent.

Mrs. Wainright, who is the wife of George Wainright, a gardener living at Marshalltown, Iowa, went to Chicago a few days ago and went to a sanitarium at 706 Jackson boulevard, where mother and children now are. Mrs. Wainright has been married less than a year. The babies immediately after birth were placed in an incubator, and will be kept there for some time. It is thought that all will live, as they are healthy and strong. Two of the babies are boys and the third a girl, the boys weighing nine and a quarter and nine pounds and the girl six and three quarter pounds.

The incubator in which the triplets lie is supplied with an electric machine which furnishes them with ozone instead of ordinary air. It is a purifier and a preventative of disease.

Wholesale Poisoning at Warren.

A dispatch from Warren says that yesterday and today have been days of excitement, there being over a hundred cases of poisoning for the physicians to attend to in the town. An ice cream wagon drove through the town and several gallons of cream were sold. Later it was developed that there were about 120 cases of poisoning, supposed to have come from the ice cream, and the doctors of the town are all busy attending to the sick.

Killed the Rats and His Sister, Too.

Walter Stein, 12 years' old accidentally shot his 4 year old sister Wednesday while assisting in exterminating rats on the farm of his father, George Stein, near Black Bear, Berks county. Armed with a revolver the lad shot at a big rat. The bullet passed through the animal and struck his sister, inflicting a wound which will result in her death.

REV. DR. WOOD WEDS IN LONDON.

Pastor of Second Presbyterian Church is Married to Miss Alice Cox.

The engagement of Miss Alice Cox, daughter of Mrs. Jones S. Cox, of 1219 Locust street, to the Rev. Charles Wood, D. D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Twenty-first and Walnut street, Philadelphia, and one of the best known divines of that denomination in the country, which was announced on June 8, was followed on Tuesday last by their marriage in London, England, according to a cablegram received in this city Friday night.

Mrs. Wood is many years younger than her husband, who is 54 years old. He was previously married in 1883 to Miss Mary H. Morris, daughter of Mrs. Wistar Morris and a niece of Mrs. Evan Blanchard of Bellefonte, who died in 1891. He has always taken a great interest in public affairs, and is a member of the Committee of Nine. He has also been prominently identified for some years with the work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Dr. Wood is a graduate of Haverford College, class of 1870, and of Princeton Seminary, 1873. He subsequently studied abroad, in Germany and Eastern countries. In 1885 he was called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church, Germantown, and was transferred to the Second Church in 1897. He is a close friend of former President Grover Cleveland and his family. On the occasion of her visits to Philadelphia, Mrs. Cleveland was always a guest at Dr. Wood's home.

Rev. Dr. Wood has many warm friends in Bellefonte where he has frequently visited, who joins in hearty congratulations to him and his fair bride.

Gasoline Tank Exploded and Automobile Burned up.

The once fine automobile owned by Charles M. Gibson, of Williamsport is now a total wreck, having been burned up in an exciting fire on the Grampian hill about 5 o'clock Thursday evening.

Mr. Gibson was treating a party of friends to a ride over the famous drive, and a spark from the electric igniter set fire to some gasoline, and a moment later an explosion occurred, rendering the machine useless as to locomotion.

The flames communicating with the gasoline tank caused an explosion that made the auto overturn, and the fire reaching the woodwork it was soon ablaze.

When the explosion of the gasoline tank occurred, says the Gazette and Bulletin, the occupants of the auto were hurled into the air, but they landed safely. The party at once attempted to extinguish the fire, but being without water it was necessary, to accomplish their purpose, to overturn the machine. Eager hands assisted, and among them were those of Mr. Gibson, whose fingers were badly roasted. The auto was turned over two or three times down the hill, but the flames consumed the body and wheels.

There were no serious results other than the complete destruction of the automobile. It was worth a thousand dollars or so.

Mob Runs Riot In Russian Poland

Lodz, Russian Poland, June 24.—Since early Friday morning this city has been in a state of panic. The strike is general and all the factories and shops are closed. Barricades have been erected at many points.

Rifle volleys and revolver shots are heard continually.

Many persons have been killed or wounded, but it is impossible at present to ascertain the number with any exactitude owing to the general character of the disturbances.

The mob sacked a number of liquor stores and broke the street lamps. Street railroad traffic is interrupted.

Troops stormed the barricades erected in the streets by the strikers. It is believed fifty persons have been killed and 200 wounded.

Doctor to be Burried Alive.

Attica, Ind., June 27.—Dr. Tanner, who twenty years ago fasted forty days to prove that the Biblical account of the fast of Jesus was not physically impossible, will be buried alive for thirty days near this city this summer. This plan originated in the brain of H. T. Kramer. Mr. Kramer's idea is that chemical action in the earth generates a form of energy which he designates as radio active and which is carried to the surface by the freely flowing springs. At the earth's surface, so runs the theory, the water is evaporated and energy remains behind in the mud.

OVER 1200 VICTIMS!

Terrible Result of the Fighting in Russian Poland.

MANY JEWS LEAVING

Rumor of an Approaching Massacre Caused Over 20,000 to Leave the Town.

MARTIAL LAW HAS BEEN PROCLAIMED

Warsaw, June 27.—Disorderly crowds have thronged the streets since early Monday morning. They erected barricades at Ogrodowa, Krochmaina and Wronia streets, on top of which they placed red flags. The police and soldiers stormed these barricades and ten persons were wounded by bullets or bayonets. Another affray took place at Zeelazna street, where Cossacks charged the crowd and wounded three persons. In the Central Market a crowd attacked a patrol with revolvers, to which the patrol replied with volleys, killing a boy and wounding three other persons.

Five workmen who had refused to strike were stabbed to death by their comrades. Revolutionary proclamations have been posted on the walls and two hundred persons have been arrested.

A heavy rain fell all day nd this is believed to have prevented more serious collisions.

The Social Democratic party and the Jewish Bund announce that the fight against the government must continue, but it is believed that with the present show of military force the situation will be controlled. Business is at a deadlock.

The city is in a state of siege. Patrols of cavalry and infantry are moving in every street.

The general strike which began Monday was preceded Monday night by attempts at red flag demonstrations, but the Cossacks charged and dispersed the rioters with their whips. On Vononia street a sullen crowd made a stand and a patrol fired three shots.

Although thousand of workmen obeyed the strike proclamation, the tie up is not complete. Many bakers have joined the workmen and Warsaw is threatened with a bread famine. In some of the streets the workmen tried to throw up barricades and resist the troops.

All the Polish newspapers have been forbidden to issue any editions.

PEASANTS URGED TO REVOLT.

Starista, Russia, June 27.—Revolutionists from Tver, Central Russia, are scattering proclamations broadcast among the peasantry calling on them to rise. The proclamations are signed with the name of Father Gapon, but his name is believed to have been forged.

Kishineff, Russia June 27.—All the printers here have struck work.

The army reserves of the two capitals, St. Petersburg and Moscow, will, according to a late report, be mobilized, the former June 28 and the latter June 29.

A mob of a thousand persons surrounded and attacked the Police Station and the Governor General's palace Monday All the windows were broken before the rioters were overpowered by the police. Five policemen were wounded. A detachment of dragoons finally arrived on the scene and dispersed the rioters.

The population was thrown into a state of panic Sunday night by a sudden volley of revolver shots in the centre of the city and by "red flag" demonstrations. The people fled to their homes and the shops were closed. The manifestants dispersed on the arrival of patrols.

The rumor of an approaching massacre of Jew has caused twenty thousand Jews to leave the town.

Death of Rev. Christine.

Rev. F. F. Christine, who was pastor of the Presbyterian church at Centre Hall prior to 1900, died suddenly at his home in Stewart, O. Recently he and his daughter, Miss Mabel, were in a boat setting outlines when she saw her father limp and helpless, and it was with great difficulty that Miss Christine was able to reach shore, where her brother-in-law, Thomas Moore, of Centre Hall, was awaiting them. He was taken to his home in a dying condition and he passed away shortly afterward. He was 57 years of age and a man well and favorably known in Centre county and where he recently resided.

NEW SCHOOL LAW.

The Pupils Must be Taught to be Kind to Brutes and Birds.

Under an act of assembly approved March 27, 1905, and which went into effect immediately, teachers in the public schools shall spend at least half an hour in each week instructing their pupils to be kind to animals and birds. The act says that a system of humane education which shall include kind treatment of birds and animals, shall be included in the branches of study now required by law to be taught in the common schools, such instruction to be given all pupils, up and including the fourth grade of the public schools of the commonwealth, and to consist of not more than half an hour each week, during the term of school; that no experiment upon any living creature, to demonstrate in physiology, shall be permitted in any public school in this state, and that the principal or teacher in every school shall certify, in each of his or her monthly reports to the school board, that such instruction has been given in the school under his or her control.

Rats in Upper Story Jarred the Drummer.

According to a story told by a traveling man who came up from Jersey Shore recently, rats must be as plentiful down there as fleas on a bull dog.

The drummer says he stopped at one of the best hotels in the town on Thursday night. When he was shown his room he saw a rat scamper across the floor, but of course, a traveling man is used to such incidentals and he paid no attention to the rodent. He prepared for bed, placed his shoes and socks on a chair, said his prayers and peacefully slumbered till awakened the next morning by the porter, as he wanted to come to this city on Erie mail. He started to dress and missed his foot gear. He hunted about the room and had about concluded that some one had been in his room and played a joke on him when he thought of the rat episode. He pulled the bed away from the wall and there was a big rat hole, also the remains of his property. The rats had dragged both socks into the hole, had gnawed the entire top off of one shoe and a big hole in the other. Now, wouldn't that jar you!

Chicken Thief Kicked by a Watchful Mule.

An ex-army mule owned by Frank Weinhold, a York county farmer, foiled an alleged chicken thief, who entered the barn at midnight to select some fat pullets.

Augustus Burkhart, the alleged marauder, did not get the pullets, but felt the force of the mule's heels, and is now unconscious—concussion of the brain, the doctors call it.

Burkhart says that in swinging a club to kill the chickens, he gave the mule, of whose presence he was unaware, a sound rap across the flank.

The mule kicked with vigor and accuracy, one heel lanking full on Burkhart's temple and the other squarely in his face.

Burkhart crawled to a porch of the farmer's house, where he was found the next morning.

May Lose Feet From Tight Shoes.

As the result of crowding her feet into shoes which were much too small for her Miss Mary Ludwig, daughter of an Elizabeth, N. J., shoe merchant, was taken to the general hospital. It is announced that blood poisoning has set in, and both feet may have to be amputated.

Miss Ludwig has remarkably pretty feet, and she wore shoes to display them to the best advantage. Her duties compelled her to stand a great deal, and as the tiny shoes cramped the feet, abscesses formed on the soles.

The family physician, when he found that the case was serious, insisted that Miss Ludwig be sent to the hospital and the operation be performed at once. But the girl's father will not consent to amputation, except as a last resort to save his daughter's life.

Caught a Human Fish.

To have a 7 year-old boy dangling on the end of his fishing line was the peculiar sensation given to a fisherman on Codorus creek, near York, Wednesday afternoon. Oliver Klinefelter, 7 years old, was in swimming at the above named place. He dived under the water and the hook got fastened to his ear. Thinking that a fish was nibbling, the fisherman pulled hard only to find that he had caught a live youngster. Screaming with pain, young Klinefelter hurried out of the water and went to the office of a doctor where the hook was extracted.

FRIENDLY BUT FIRM!

Public Anxiety in Paris Over the French and German Controversy.

PRESS ADVISES THEM

It is Pointed out that the Negotiations Have Been Heretofore Conducted With Courtesy.

WORKING FOR AMICABLE ENDING

Paris June 26.—Speculation is rife regarding the probable purport of Germany's reply to the French note regarding the proposed international conference over Moroccan affairs, which reply has not yet been received. The statement that Germany would refrain from replying before verbal explanations took place between Premier Rouvier and Prince Radolin, the German ambassador, is not regarded seriously in well informed circles where it is thought probably that an interview will not take place before Wednesday, when the reply from Berlin may reach Paris, but the officials are without definite information on this point. It is alleged that the contents of the reple were given out today, in which Germany requests a clearer statement of the French program for moroccan affairs, suggesting that each subject be discussed separately in accordance with the terms of the Madrid convention, the two points principally referred to being coast trading and frontiers, and that should France accept Germany would abandon the idea of the conference. This, however, is regarded as a surmise.

Meanwhile public anxiety relative to eventualities, thought somewhat abated, is still intense. The press continues to advise patience and confidence in the efforts of the French government to arrive at a pacific settlement. It is pointed out that the negotiations have heretofore been conducted in a spirit of courtesy and that appearance show that everything is being done by both sides to reach an amicable arrangement.

Berlin, June 26.—Chancellor Von Buelow received M. Bihourd, the French ambassador Sunday.

The newspapers continue to discuss the situation between France and Germany with some heat. The North German Gazette declares that "in Premier Rouvier's note the republic adopts no decided standpoint toward a conference and therefore the situation is no clearer.

An attempt is being made to shift the responsibility for the recent war panic to articles in the British press, and the National Zeitung solemnly reminds France that a Franco-German conflict would not be decided by a Trafalgar, but on French or German battlefields.

Washington, June 26.—At the request of the president, Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German ambassador called at the white house Sunday night at 9 o'clock and remained with the president for more than an hour. His visit was the only outward sign of activity in the peace negotiations. Russia has not yet announced her plenipotentiaries.

So far as Japan's plenipotentiaries are concerned, the president will be able to announce them as soon as he receives the names of the Russian envoys.

It is believed that Morocco was a subject of discussion at last night's Ambassador Speck von Sternberg. The Washington government, it is pointed out, is aware that Germany does not wish or contemplate war with France and the officials here believe that there is no reason why an agreement should not be reached after friendly, though tedious, negotiations.

Large Reward for Murderer.

The commissioners of Northumberland county have offered a reward of $4,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Michael Wanzie, of Natalie, who was shot down by an unknown assassin on Tuesday afternoon last. This action would indicate that the commissioners have gone after the perpetrator of this foul crime in dead earnest, as the reward offered is sufficient to enlist the services of skilled detectives.

SECTION HAND INJURED ON CENTRAL.

As the hand car containing eight men going to work on the Bellefonte Central Railroad was bowling along near Krumrine's crossing about 7.30 Thursday morning, Edward Clark a section hand was thrown off by a sudden lurch and was dropped right in front of the car. The brakes were instantly applied by the men working the levers, and as the car was not moving fast, it was stopped before going very far, but not until it had almost run over the fallen man. Clark is of a highly nervous temperament and as soon as the car was backed he jumped up and ran like a deer down the track for about one hundred yards when he dropped in a dead faint. The 6.30 train from Bellefonte came along just at this time and Clark was put aboard and taken to State College where Dr. John I. Robinson examined his injuries and found that the ligaments on several ribs had been badly torn and bruised, with the possibility of internal injuries.

Robbed Wild Turkeys Nest.

An agent of the state game commission has been in Williamsport several days investigating an alleged violation of the law. A farmer residing within a few miles of Williamsport was reported to the authorities as having taken eggs from a nest of a wild turkey and placed them with a domestic fowl to hatch them.

The law is very specific in its declaration that no person shall rob the nest of any bird unless there is grave danger that the elements or wild beasts may destroy the nest and contents. The officers ascertained that the alleged nest robber took possession of the eggs and divided them among several friends for hatching purposes.

The investigation made by the State officer is said to have established the fact that the nest of a wild turkey had been disturbed and the eggs removed. when questioned regarding the matter the representative of the state game commission was informed by the suspect beyond a suspicion of a doubt that the eggs were taken from the nest to prevent destruction by wild beasts. Consequently it has been deemed advisable to make no arrests. The penalty for taking eggs from a birds nest in violation of the provisions of the act of assembly is $50.

Greason Says He'll Tackle Hard Work

Samuel Greason, acquitted for the Murder of John Edwards, left Reading Thursday for Carlisle, probably never to return. Before leaving he made this statement.

"I concluded not to make a show of myself. My family all told me that I should not do it. My attorney, John H. Rothermel, told me the same thing, as did the Rev. Dr. E. S. Brownmiller, my former spiritual adviser, and I am taking their advice. A Reading hotel man offered me $100 if I would remain around his hotel for one month. I declined the offer.

"Mr. Brownmiller and Mr. Rothermel told me not to drink, and I have not touched a drop of liquor since my acquittal, nor do I intend to. The people of Berks county have been kind to me, and I will try to live in such a manner that their kindness to me will not be misplaced.

"This is one of the reasons why I think it is not the proper thing for me to make a show of myself. I intend to go home and get down to hard work in the future."

Pastor is Sued for Breach of Promise.

The Rev. H. Jerome Leinbach of the Reformed church, Reading, Thursday entered bail in a civil suit instituted against him on the charge of breach of promise.

Two hours earlier Miss Martha B. Boose of Lancaster, through her attorneys, brought the suit for damages against him.

Miss Boose states that she became acquainted with the Rev. Leinbach in 1899, while he was attending the Theological seminary, and from that time he paid her addresses of a most marked character.

This, she says in her affidavit, resulted in a solemn engagement of marriage on January 19, 1901. In June, she says, he gave her an engagement ring and that he agreed that the wedding should take place on January 19, 1906.

Then, she alleges, she began to prepare for the wedding, but the Rev. Leinbach, without any notice on May 4, 1905, married Miss May Swavely.

Miss Boose mentions $10,000 as the amount of her damages.

MY BROTHER CLERGYMAN

Soon after being ordained a minister in the Episcopal church I was put in charge of the raising of funds for church building. It was my duty to go from point to point, preach a sermon on the work and receive a collection. One day while on a train on my way to G. with this object in view a young man got up from his seat nearby and took the vacant place beside me.

"I see by your dress," he said, "that you are one of us, and I would like to make your acquaintance. I am Theodore Beardslee, a graduate of——seminary. I have not a church yet, but am expecting an especial call soon."

"Happy to meet you," I said cordially and gave him my name and the work I was engaged in. He asked me if I was to preach the next day, which would be Sunday, and I told him that I was to preach at G. he said he got off at G, himself. We chatted for an hour, during which I was surprised at his information, depth and spirituality. He wore no marks of his calling, but he told me that he did not do so because he preferred not to make known his profession to strangers till he had a church. He complained of his enforced idleness and asked if there was not some way in which he could assist me—without salary—until regularly employed. I promised to think the matter over. Then he asked me very modestly if I would not permit him to preach for me the next day. I demurred to this, but he seemed so hurt at my refusal that before we had reached our journey's end I had consented.

I was met at the station by the Buckley family, at whose home I was to be entertained during my stay at G. I introduced Mr. Beardsley and he took occasion to inform them that he was to preach for me the next day. I thought that he should have waited for me to make this announcement, and was further chagrined that it brought him an invitation to stay at their house. I was frightened that on my introduction they should have taken up a stranger, but it was now too late to help it and I was not sure that I wished to help it.

Mr. Beardslee captivated my friends completely. Anna Buckley, aged eighteen, from the moment she first saw him came under the spell of his soft musical voice, his spiritual appearance. We all passed a very pleasant evening together, though Beardslee and Anna spent most of it at the piano, both having musical tastes and Beardslee a fine tenor voice.

Before we retired I called upon him to read prayers and the earnestness with which he did so confirmed me in the opinion I had formed that I would not be ashamed of him in my place in the pulpit.

The next morning I loaned Mr. Beardslee a clerical waistcoat, and we went to the church. On the way I asked him if he had a written sermon in his pocket, and he replied that he had not—that he proposed to accustom himself to speak extemporaneously. His sermon was to the point, there was no repetition, no need of condensation. Indeed, his ideas and the words in which they were expressed flowed as smoothly and as modestly as twin rivulets through a gently inclined meadow. His effort was far more successful than any I had ever made, the collection the largest taken during the year I waited after the service till it had been counted, while prominent members of the congregation were being presented to Mr. Beardslee and he was deluged with compliments. Then we went home with the Buckleys, Beardslee dawdling behind with Anna.

In the evening the regular minister held service, which we all attended, and, after listening to a delicious rendition of "Nearer, My God; to Thee" by Mr. Beardsley, accompanied by Anna on the piano, we all went to bed. I went to sleep feeling that I had been given a rest that I greatly needed while the work had gone bravely on.

On opening my eyes the next morning they rested on my suit case lying open in the middle of the floor. I sprang out of bed and put my hand on the place where I had left the collection. It was not there. I ran across the hall to see if Beardslee was in his room. He was not, and his bed gave no sign of having been slept in. Returning to my room, I noticed for the first time a paper pinned to a cushion. It read:

"The collection just pays my fee for the effort I made yesterday in your behalf. You will be pained at your discovery, but yours is nothing to the remorse I feel when I am myself."

I went downstairs to meet the family at breakfast, covered with chagrin, mortification, dread, lest the man I had introduced had robbed them as well as me. I announced his flight with the collection and told them that if they had lost anything I would be responsible. They would not admit that they had, but from the fact that they were not surprised at my announcement of his departure I inferred that they had, in some way been made sensible of it. At any rate, they strove to lighten my burden, and the sympathy of Anna Buckley was the beginning of a different feeling between us.

I drew my check for the amount of the collection and made no mention of my substitute. From that day I have never considered a clergyman's spirituality a credential.

I learned in time that the man who had duped me had really studied for orders but some physical congenital defect had made a villain of him and spoiled what might otherwise have been a brilliant career.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

"No, Sir! You cannot palm off any substitutes on me. I've been using August Flower since I was a boy, and I'll have no other."

¶Forty million bottles of August Flower sold in the United States alone since its introduction! And the demand for it is still growing. Isn't that a fine showing of success? Don't it prove that August Flower has had unfailing success in the cure of indigestion and dyspepsia—the worst enemies of health and happiness?

ANNUAL MEETING

Of the State Fisheries Association of Pennsylvania.

MANY DELEGATES HERE

SOME OF THE SUBJECTS DISCUSSED.

The State Fisheries Association of Pennsylvania, hold a highly successful meeting in Bellefonte last week. Our town is particularly appropriate for such a gathering as it is close to one of the largest fish hatcheries in the state and the streams hereabouts are the favorite haunts of the followers of Izaak Walton. So it is eminently fit and proper that a gathering of men interested in fish culture should meet here.

Among the delegates who arrived Wednesday afternoon in addition to those previously mentioned in our columns are: Dr. W. H. Reed, of Norristown; Prof. H. A. Surface, State College; W. H. Safford, fish culturist from the United States Fish Hatchery, Washington, D. C.; E. J. Curry, Freeland; Dr. J. S. McCreight, Ridgway, and John M. Hendricks of Schenckeville.

A very interesting meeting was held out at the Fish hatchery Wednesday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. It was presided over by the president of the Association, Hon. W. E. Meehan, of Harrisburg. Quite a number of important matters were taken up and discussed.

Dr. J. S. McCreight, of Ridgway, made a motion that each county association name one or more of their members as Special Fish Warden for their county to protect the several fishing streams in their respective counties. It was carried.

It was moved that hereafter the meetings of this association be held in the month of June at such places as the Association may designate. Carried.

On motion of E. J. Curry it was resolved that all county clubs be requested to send to the Corresponding Secretary, B. D. Evans, at Harrisburg, a condensed monthly report of all their actions during the year and that the corresponding secretary make a synopsis of the whole so that each club will know what has been done through the year and each club will keep in touch with the work being done. The motion was carried.

The following subjects were opened for general discussion: "Distribution of Fish Fry; Preference to be given to Members of the Association," "Time of Delivery and Planting of Fish Fry;" "Protection of Streams that have been Stocked." The discussions brought out some very valuable points.

Prof. H. A. Surface, of State College then read an interesting paper on "Food in Streams for Fish."

W. H. Safford, of the United States Department of Fisheries, then read a valuable paper on the subject "The Black Bass, its Propagation and Food." The discussion of this subject brought out the astonishing fact that the decrease of black bass in many of our waters is not altogether chargeable to the German carp. For instance in the North Branch of the Susquehanna above Wilkesbarre the bass fishing is becoming better every year, and the river at that point contains carp. On West Branch of the Susquehanna near Renovo black bass are said to be decreasing and German carp are not often seen. The Perkiomen creek which runs through Montgomery, Bucks and Lehigh counties are famous bass streams today and contain a large amount of German carp, Pine Creek in Lycoming county ten years ago contained so many bass that a fisherman could get all he wanted in a half day. Today there is hardly any black bass. There were never any carp in this stream.

Fish Commissioner Mehan believes that the worst enemy of the black bass is the back bass himself.

In the evening the entire association drove to Hecla Park where they were banqueted and royally entertained by the citizens of Bellefonte at the beautiful Nittany Country Club.

On Friday the members of the association devoted the day to fishing along the various trout streams in this vicinity.

Bank Examiners.

In view of some of the bank defalcations which have startled the country, a question naturally arises in the minds of people who do business with banks as to the value of the socalled bank examinations made at regular intervals by the national bank examiners. These examinations are supposed to settle the question as to the actual condition of the bank, but do they? Take the case of the First National, of Milwaukee; the president stole $1,400,000, or within $50,000 of the entire capital stock of the bank, and when the exposure came it showed the stealing had been going on for some time, and yet the bank examiners had been checking up the bank from time to time as all right, and the defalcation was discovered largely through accident. If a man can steal the capital stock of a bank without the bank examiners knowing anything about it, then it would seem that such examinations may properly be listed as farces, so far as their revealing the true state of the bank's affairs are concerned. If the present system of "examining" provides such poor protection to the depositors, it is now about time some plan was devised that would enable the supposed "experts" who do this work to find out something which might be of use to those vitally interested in the sonndness of the bank? One item on the books of the Milwaukee bank showed that a certain bank in New York with whom they did business owed them $100,000 while the facts were the very reverse, the Milwaukee bank being in debt just that amount to the New York bank. Here was a little matter of $400,000 which the "expert" who did the examining did not discover. Such examinations cannot fail to impress thinking people with their great value (?)

Portland Fair Draws Well.

Portland, June 23—Usually an exposition is disappointed during its early days by reason of an attendance falling far below expectations, but this is not the case with the Lewis and Clark Exposition. During the first week the admissions were 99,275. These included the remarkably large attendance of 39,577 on the opening day. But the average for the first week, exclusive of opening day, was 10,608. This is considered remarkable, in view of the general tendency of the public to wait several weeks after the opening of a fair, on the presumption that there will be more to see later.

The Portland Fair will run 137 days, or until October 15. Expert guessers, before the opening, figured that the total attendance would be from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000. Even if the daily average does not exceed that of the first week, the attendance will be but a little short of a million and a half—the highest figure se by the guessers.

But as the exposition progresses the the crowds are sure to increase. This is the history of all expositions. Every day there is some special event, and during the season there are a number of such events which will more than double the ordinary attendance. The exposition management is highly gratified at the auspicious start already made.

NATURAL GAS FOR BELLEFONTE.

Surveys Carry the Belt Developed in Clinton County Into Burnside Township, This County.

These are the days of evolution, from old theories the advanced geologists and field operators expect to find oil and gas anywhere where the physical conditions are characteristic. The Susquehanna Gas Co. composed of representative men at Condersport, Lock Haven and Williamsport have a large volume of natural gas housed up ready to tap into a pipe line to consumers and other wells drilling in Clinton county. The belt has been drilled at long intervals for 16 miles across Clinton into upper Lycoming showing gas between.

Gas continues when found the length of anti-clinal formations which formation is prominent in Burnside township. It is proposed to broaden further the Clinton county proposition by extending operations into Centre county, provided the towns to be benefitted give the movement proper encouragement. Some of Bellefonte's public spirited citizens will be consulted.

We have good glass sand now but must await natural gas to utilize it successfully and with the thought of the great economic advantages of natural gas we bespeak much interest by Bellefonte citizens on the subject coming as it does in such tangable shape.

Vardaman's Sympathy With Toilers.

The announcement is made that the board of trustees of the University of Mississippi has rejected the offer of Andrew Carnegie to give $25,000 to assist in the construction of a library building for the university. Governor Vardaman, who is a member of the board of trustees, is quoted as follows:

I would rather see the walls of the State university and our colleges crumble into dust and the buildings be battered and grimy than that they should be built up and handsomely painted and furnished by this money, which has been coined from the blood and tears of the toiling masses, demanding the usury of self-respect, which we cannot afford to pay.

We may not have in Mississippi the scientific equipment for imparting knowledge and all the modern accessories that make up the great institutions of learning, but we have the means of making strong and stalwart men and women who scorn the slavery of wealth and stand unequaled in their proud independence of thought.

Now that is a very fine speech from the standpoint of the toiling masses and many working men in all sections of the country would be inclined to applaud it with great enthusiasm. There are two or three prosaic facts, however, which should be looked into before one permits his feelings to master his reason.

For one thing the very humblest workingman about Andrew Carnegie's mills received a very much larger daily wage than the employing class in Mississippi pay the workingmen of that state. Governor Vardaman is one of those employers. Few laborers in the north could be induced to work a single week for the patriotic Vardaman at the wages he is willing to give.

Another fact is that all the Vardamans have was accumulated out of the unrequitted toil of the ancestors of the black men for whom the governor and those who believe as he does have no use except as beasts of burden. When it comes to a cold-blooded examination of the relations of Andrew Carnegie and of men like Vardaman to the working people of the country the advantage is decidedly with Carnegie, faulty as he may be.

Calls for a Leader.

(Pittsburg Times)

The Republican party of Pennsylvania needs a leader. Not a boss, but a leader. It has too long had bosses. Now it needs some man whom it can follow, not one who continually essays to drive it. The rank and file are sick and tired of a leadership based solely on the centurion's authority. "I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it."

Pennsylvania Republicans believe in party organization. Indeed, so steadfast is their belief in organization that they have time and time again overlooked or pardoned gross and flagrant wrongs committed in its name. But they are tired of a mere machine, and a machine which gives orders but never seeks or accepts counsel, which aims to crush out individuality and ambition, which rewards only subserviency and frowns on merit.

"The hour and the man are here," said Meg Merrilies, as she cast the torch in the flax. The hour is here in Pennsylvania but is the man? Nothing could more forcibly show the poverty into which the political system so long continued in Pennsylvania has placed the Republican party than the fact that at this critical time there is really no man in its ranks to whom it can turn with confidence for leadership.

Still, there must be someone somewhere in the state. He should be a country Republican, one sprung from the loins of the common people, one who, as Abraham Lincoln said, "Keeps his ear to the ground" and thus knows what the people want and leads the way to its accomplishment. The voters want no more of this leadership which would engraft the narrow principles of a ward organization upon a great state. Pennsylvania is too big for that, its people too enlightened We need a leader who is of and from the people, who is given his power by the people, and who uses it for the people.

The Fireman's Parade.

In spite of the inclemency of the weather the Firemen held their big parade through the principal streets of our town on Wednesday June 21. The rain marred the pleasure of it somewhat but never-the-less the boys made a fine appearance and were highly complimented and soundly applauded all along the line of parade. There was a nice display of fireworks along the entire route.

The Chief Marshal of the parade was R. A. Beck, the bugler for the Logan Fire Company. Mounted on a handsome charger he led the parade and received many compliments for his fine appearance.

Next came the Coleville band setting a lively time for the marchers by their splendid music.

Following them were the Undine Fire Company in their handsome new uniforms. Long blue overcoats and hats to match they certainly presented a very fine appearance.

The Logan Fire company followed and there was a large turnout in spite of bad weather. Both companies had their fire engines and apparatus.

The showing made by both companies demonstrated Bellefonte to be possessed of the finest and most up-to-date volunteer fire department of any town of its size in the state.

—"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge West Cornwell, Conn.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., June 27th.

The President not content with having instituted negotiations which promise to bring about peace between Russia and Japan, is now trying diligently to arrange an armistice between the opposing armies. Of course the subject partaking as it does of a military character, is a most delicate one and the President could not urge the arrangement on either power unless he were in a position to offer some guarantee with regard to the attitude of the other, which he obviously cannot do. He is, nevertheless, presenting in the strongest possible light the humane side of the proposition and the pity of it if more lives should be lost at a time when permanent peace seems to be in sight.

The President and Secretary Taft have between them brought the Loomis-Bowen case to a close after a very thorough investigation of every phase of the affair and the exoneration of Secretary Loomis of dishonesty, although Secretary Taft was compelled to censure Mr. Loomis for his indiscretion in engaging in enterprises which might have placed him in a compromising position between his duty as a Minister and his personal interests. The President sent to Secretary Taft a scathing letter of rebuke to Bowen concluding with an order that Mr. Bowen be dismissed. Reading between the lines of the President's letter it is obvious that his indignation against Bowen was chiefly due to the fact that Bowen, in pursuance of a hobby regarding Secretary Loomis' lack of dishonesty, was guilty of a thorough lack of loyalty. Secretary Loomis on the other hand, while guilty of indiscretion in some direction has always been noted for his loyalty to the administration and to the United States. Secretary Taft, who conducted the investigation is still convinced of Bowen's entire honesty, although he is equally convinced that he is almost a monomaniac on the subject of Mr. Loomis character.

By standing by his friend, Paul Morton, Secretary of the Navy, the President has incurred severe criticism but the President is himself possessed of too much red blood to look at any matters from a purely judicial standpoint, and he is thus completely convinced that Secretary Mortan was wholly and absolutely innocent of any responsibility for the illegal rebates granted by the Sante Fe. The President moreover gives great credit to Mr. Morton for the frank and manly stand he took before the Interstate Commerce Commission and attributes to Mr. Morton's testimony a large share of the success of the Government in putting a stop to the practice of railroad rebates.

That there's reason in all things in a woman it's because.

That when the devil is hard pressed he calls on the hypocrites.

That even the fellow with a liberal education may be close fisted.

That the man who realizes his foolishness is not wholly a fool.

That men are what women make and the world is full of fools.

That only a fool will rock the boat, especially on the sea of matrimony.

That it doesn't take a particularly strong woman to hold a man up to ridicule,

That it is comparatively easy to forgive an enemy after you get square with him.

That in speaking of Italians, the night doesn't always come when you see the Dago

That when a fellow tells a girl he isn't worthy of her she doesn't believe it at the time.

That a wise florist never throws bouquets at himself until he is sure he can't sell them.

That when the pleasures of life begin to pall upon a man he thinks of getting married.

That the one time in a man's life when he feels that he is not in it is at his own wedding.

That a flirt is a woman who gives a man the key of her heart, knowing that the lock is rusty.

That the less one knows about other people's affair the more they are satisfied with their own.

That if you strike a man when he is down you can't expect to strike him for a loan when he gets up.

That the fellow who shakes your hand most effusively, when you have money will shake you altogether when it is gone.

A Popular Feature of N. G. P. Encampment,

A very interesting and popular feature of the National Guard Encampments is the work conducted by the State Young Men's Christian Association at the annual encampment of our State Guard. The work was begun in 1894, and has been successfully prosecuted ever since. The State Association erects a large tent with each of the three brigades, equipping the same with tables and writing material, organ and song books, paper rack with a splendid assortment of the best magazines and weeklies of the country, as well as daily papers from the home towns of the Guardsmen, and the great city dailies, and checkers, chess, crokinole, carroms, quoits, and baseball. Each tent is a well equipped Association free to all Guardsmen. Gospel meetings are held at the tents during the Encampment, and everything possible is done for the highest good and comfort of the men. The Association throughout the state co-operate with the State Association in the work, many of the workers being Secretaries or members from these Associations.

These tents have become a recognized feature of the Encampment, and are among the most popular places in the camp. Both officers and privates unite in most hearty commendation of the work.

The work is supported by voluntary contributions, and any wishing to help maintain this work, can send their gift to Mr. James B. Bailey, Treasurer, State Y. M. C. A. Harrisburg, Pa.

A Heroic Act.

The north bound passenger train on the Tyrone division, between Sandy Ridge and Osceola, escaped what might have been a very serious wreck Friday night, imperilling the lives of the 128 passengers who were aboard the same.

A little lad, Wallace Moore by name, aged only about eight years, residing in close proximity to the place in question, noticed that a switch had been wilfully opened, or that the employes had overlooked closing it; and knowing that the passenger train would soon be due, stood on the track until it was approaching, when he waved his hat and succeeded in flagging the train. The passengers and trainmen were loud in their praise of the little boy.

Nearly a Tragedy.

Some one who has no use for cats tried to send one more to the happy hunting grounds last Wednesday, by means of a rifle. The shot went a little high and lodged in a window sill of Jared Sowers house. Mrs. Sowers was working near by and had there been just a slight deflection there would have been a different tale to tell.—State College Times.

A Temperance Advance.

That the cause of temperance is making substantial progress on educational lines has recently been made evident in a very striking manner, by a report of the Bureau in charge of Temperance Instruction in American Schools and Colleges. In that report it is announced that a committee, representing fifteen thousand members of the medical profession in Great Britain, has decided to adopt practically in its entirety, the American Course of Study in Hygiene and Temperance in the British schools, and that within a very short time every local School Board in that kingdom will be using the same syllabus of study on this subject that is now employed in our elementary schools.

This is at once a signal triumph for temperance, and a deserved recognition of America's leadership in this special branch of educational reform. It is difficult to estimate the great good that must result. A year ago, a Royal Commission, reporting to Parliment on physical deterioration in Britain, said:

The Committee believe that more may be done to check the degeneration resulting from drink, by bringing home to men and women the fatal effects of alcohol on physical efficiency, than by expatiating on the moral wickedness of drinking.

Following this report, the representative medical men of the United Kingdom joined in signing a petition for the compulsory school study of hygiene and temperance. The response received is probably without parallel in the British post-office. In a single day eight thousand signatures were received by mail, and were carried by a special staff of postmen. For days the deluge continued Then the doctors of all the medical school—and including practically every distinguished member of the profession—got together to help save the rising generation from the degradation of alcohol, by teaching the young or both sexes the plair, unvarnished truth about the curse which has afflicted all "civilized" lands, their own included, almost from time immemorial. In doing this, the leaders of the reform in Britain are following the plain path which our own temperance reformers have laboriously, but successfully blazed—the path to national sanity and sobriety, to health and prosperity.

Now, if ever, is the opportunity of the press, the pulpit, and the various temperance organizations in our own land to urge forward the war on alcohol with vigor and determination. While the campaign of enlightenment goes on in the schools, and in local State and National legislation, the crusade against the sin of alcoholic indulgence should be winning its adult converts in our churches and Rescue Missions, and reclaiming thousands from the slavery of drink. Rich and poor are equally interested in this war for national sobriety, and there should be no lack of means to press it to advantage at all points, and under divine blessing, to ultimate success.

An Outdoor Fourth-of-July Party.

Whenever it is possible, it is much better to have a Fourth-of-July party outdoors. On a good big lawn is the best place. You cannot have too many American flags scattered about. An inexpensive and very effective decoration can be made by purchasing three pieces of crepe paper—red, white and blue—cutting them into strips about two inches wide, and using them as streamers around the posts of a veranda or twisted together and hung from shrub to shrub. The paper is less expensive than the bunting, and just as pleasing to the children.

There can be no prettier sight than a table set in the national colors under the green trees, and surrounded by a number of gaily dressed little folks. The fluttering flags and highly colored decorations will be a delight to the eyes of the little folks.

Most charming little sets of crepe paper, consisting of a large tablecloth, twelve napkins and twelve doilies, can be bought for twenty-five cents at either toy, department or stationery stores. They are decorated with the American flag, the shield and the eagle in red, white and blue, all prettily embellished in gold.

A twenty-five-cent box of little wooden soldiers, set in marching positions, add much to both the color-scheme and the children's delight. A tiny cannon makes a good centerpiece, and miniature cannons, costing from five to fifteen cents apiece, make amusing little souvenirs to be put at each plate. To these may be added groups of miniature lead soldiers—the variety that come in boxes by the dozen.

The gaiety of the table is added to by placing a few snapping-crackers, covered with red, white and blue paper, at each plate, and as the meal progresses the children will enjoy pulling them and adorning their heads with the Liberty caps to be found inside.—Woman's Home Companion for July.

Concerts at Hecla Park.

The Park management has again secured the services of the Christy Smith orchestra for these occasions. Concerts will commence at 3:00 p. m. each Friday afternoon.

Notice to Millers.

During the session of the last legislature, the law regulating the sale of concentrated commercial feeding stuffs was so amended as to add to the feeds that shall not be sold without having affixed thereto in a conspicuous place, a legible and plainly printed statement certifying the number of net pounds of the feeding stuff the package contains, the name, brand or trade-mark under which the article is sold; the name and address of the manufacturer or importer and a statement of the percentage it contains of crude fat and crude protein of the following: Corn, bran, wheat, rye and buckwheat bran and middlings Also hay, straw and corn stover, when the same are mixed with other material.

In other words, the feeds above named have been added to the list of feeds that cannot be sold without the above cited certificate being attached. This, however, does not, under the provisions of the act, interfere with persons engaged with the State of Pennsylvania in manufacturing flours so as to prevent them from selling at the place where made their own manufacture of bran and middlings, without having the above named certificate attached.

Secured a big Contract.

G. Edward Haupt and Theodore Haupt, both of this city, received word on Saturday from the State Fish Commission at Harrisburg that they had been awarded the contract for putting in the new concrete fish ponds and water ways at the Bellefonte hatchery. This contract was put out for bids and the bid of the Haupt Brothers was the lowest and they got the contract. It means a big lot of work as 33 fish ponds besides water ways and other extensive improvements are to be constructed.

We congratulate the Haupt Brothers on securing so valuable a contract and at the same time feel sure that the work will be done in satisfactory and reliable manner They have had several years experience in the business and have always performed their work in a good substantial manner that stood the test of time.

Dined by the Pope.

Last Sunday, June 18, being Trinity Sunday, the pope received in private audience in the throne room 16 American students, who were ordained during the past year. They were presented by Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college. The Pope exhorted them to practice the piety of their esteemed rector saying if they did so he had no fear for their success in the United States.

A dinner of 150 covers was afterward given at the American college. Among the guests were Arch Bishop Ryan of Philadelphia, Arch Bishop Keane of Dubuque, Iowa and Bishop Garvey of the Altoona diocese.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Shirtwaist Men in Church.

Rev. Horace Lincoln Jacobs, of Harrisburg, a well known Methodist minister, in discussing the propriety of men attending church in shirt sleeves says: "If there are any shirtwaist men in my church, I have no objection to their staying, but I do not believe in making any special plea to get them there. I would much rather have a shirtwaist man than a half-dressed woman sitting in my congregation.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Rich Danville Lawyer Was Lake Shore Victim.

John R. Bennett Esq., who was burned to death in the wreck on the Lake Shore railroad on Wednesday night at Mentor, Ohio, although doing business in New York city, was a resident of Danville. Mr. Bennett was about 50 years of age and was a native of Philipsburg, N. J. He was a student at the Princeton college at the same time Hon. C. R. Savidge of Sunbury and James Scarlett of Danville were students at that institution. During his college days Mr. Bennett often visited Danville and there married a Miss Grove of that place. His wife died about four years ago; lately he married a New York lady.

After settling in Danville, Mr. Bennett studied law and was admitted to the bar. He made a specialty of patent right cases and after opening an office in New York City, he soon acquired a large practice in patent cases. He testified in a law suit in Danville, some years ago, that his practice netted him $60,000 a year. He purchased the old Grove Mansion on the outskirts of Danville, and furnished it luxuriously. Adjacent to his home he bought a number of farms, and on one of these properties he gave employment to 75 people. After the death of his first wife, he spent more time in New York and Chicago, In the latter place he also had an office, but he claimed Danville as his home, and every year spent some time there. He was the largest stockholder in the Danville National bank, owning $60,000 worth of the stock.

Fretful Fault-Finders.

The world is never fond of the person who is perennial chairman of a grievance committee,

The fellow who ever has a big chunk of trouble in his anatomy goes among his fellows snarling out his woes and worries. He recalls to your mind a bear with a sore head, or a bulldog with one ear chewed off.

Emerson the Prophet of Concord, said, "Do not bark against the bad, but chant the beauties of the good." The growling, carping, fault-finding Brutus, the world shuns, as it does all persons who are continously looking on the dark side of things.

Make it one of your regular habits to look at and think of the good points of your friends, associates, as well as your enemies, and environments. If you have no good word for your neighbors and associates you had better keep still about them, as their sins and short comings will find them out in due season, without any help from you.

Hate, malice, envy, anger and peevishness are rank poisons, and if given free play, will poison your blood, poison your food, poison your efforts, bring you failure in business, lose your friends and blight your hopes, impair your energies and shorten your life.

A Birthday Party.

About 50 relatives and friends called on Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Crain, Saturday June 24 in honor of Mrs. Crains 53rd birthday. The party was a complete surprise on Mrs. Crain, her daughter Verna having gotten up the affair entirely unknown to her mother. G. H. Crain of Altoona; J. E. Crain, of Bellefonte; Wm. Stanley, and Harry Peters, of Milesburg; E. J. Cullen, of Cresson; with their families, Miss Verna McMonigal, of Houtzdale; with a number of relatives and friends from Bellefonte, Tyrone, Fowler and Milesburg made up the party and called on Mrs. Crain at 10 o'clock a. m., with an abundance of provision which all present partook of hartily. Mrs. Crain was the recipient of a number of valuable and useful presents as a token of the high esteem in which she is held by her children and friends. May she live to see many more such happy events is the wish of all those present.

Another Swindling Scheme.

Here is a swindling scheme that is liable to be worked in this section. A man leaves a box of salve at the house with the understanding that if used he will collect fifty cents. After a few days another man will call. If the salve has not been opened it will be taken up. A little later the original salve man will appear. He will ask for the pay for his goods When told it has been handed over the fellow will stimulate anger. To get rid of him the price demanded will be handed over. The pair are confederates.

J. B. Shuman to Leave.

J. B. Shuman, heretofore proprietor of the State College Hotel will hold a sale on Saturday at 9:30 a. m to dispose of the furnishings and as much else as he can, in order to clear the way for the new building which will be erected on the site of the present structure. This was the first house erected in State College. It will not be demolished but will be moved down Allen St. about sixty feet to foundations now awaiting it. A modern three-story hotel building will be erected where the old one stands at present. Mr. Shuman will ship his household goods to Huntingdon, Pa., where he will store them.

"Dad," as he is familiarly known rightly thinks that after four years of such strenuous labor as the management of a hotel involves, it is time to take a rest. Accordingly he will not engage in any business for a while yet, but with Mrs. Shuman will spend the next month or so visiting their daughter Emma at her home in New York.

During his sojourn in State College, "Dad," by his uniform good nature and jovial manner has won the esteem of all with whom he came in contact and it is with much regret that the citizens of the town will view his departure.—State College Times.

Memorial Service.

Bald Eagle Grange of Milesburg held a very impressive memorial service in their hall on Sunday, June 25th at 2:30 o'clock. The service was a fitting tribute to two worthy members of this Grange who during the past year have been called from time to eternity, Both Col. James F. Weaver and G. H. Lyman were active patrons. The former was a charter member of Bald Eagle Grange and was prominent in the work of the order throughout the state.

The Grange Hall was beautifully festooned and decorated for the occasion and when Master George Nolt opened the service the hall was well filled with patrons and friends. The scripture was read by Rev. Bingham of Runville and prayer was offered by Rev. Piper, of Milesburg. Rev. Lathrop of Milesburg then preached an appropriate memorial sermon, after which Rev. Piper spoke in memoriam of Colonel Weaver. The singing was in charge of the organist, Miss Gertie Confer, and was very effectively rendered. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Bingham and thus closed a very appropriate and touching memorial service.

Idleness and Divorce.

In the shocking cases of perfidy and unfaithfulness to the marriage vow made out in the divorce courts, the root of the matter lies, as in so many other sorts of sin, in idleness. The absence of strenuous, compulsory occupation is in itself a temptation to crime. The idle man or woman whose sole interest in life is the pursuit of pleasure inevitably becomes sated with its different forms. All the ingenuity which can be expended upon inventions of new sorts of food, new ways of serving, new entertainments, really avails little. After all is said and done a banquet is only a banquet, a cotillion is only a cotillion and even operas and theatres after a few years begin to seem strangely and dully alike. A new emotion, a new sensation—something which money cannot buy—this becomes the most desirable thing on earth.

The men who are drilling for oil near town had a streak of bad luck last week. The drill broke off at a depth of two hundred feet and the grapling irons with which they tried to get the broken piece out also became fast. At the date of this writing the broken drill is still in the well. Last week's Reporter relates how one of the drillers went down in the well to the depth of fifty feet. The famous editor who writes the "That" column for the Keystone Gazette would like to know how a man weighing over 200 avoirdudois could descend an eight inch hole. The man is not very large, neither in height nor weight, and the hole is nearly two feet wide, so the task wasn't an impossibility as the puny editor would have us believe.

Dont's for Fourth.

Here are some "dont's" for the Fourth of July, prepared with a view to mimimizing the lockjaw epidemic, which is about due:

Don't allow your children to use toy pistols.

Don't let them have blank cartridges.

Don't let them have dynamite canes.

Don't attempt to dress any gun-powder wounds yourself. Make all haste to get to a hospital, and in the meantime keep the wound open to the air.

Don't forget that there are from 300 to 500 deaths in this country every year from lockjaw following Fourth of July accidents.

Already the boom of the cannon cracker and the crackling of the smaller ones have announced that impulsive young Americans are not only preparing for the Fourth of July, but are anticipating it.

Simultaneously with these explosive evidences of patriotism, the hospitals are increasing their facilities and making elaborate arrangements to take care of the wounded, just as the surgeons with the Japanese or Russian armies do before going into battle.

Despite the crusades in favor of a "safe and sane Fourth" that have been following one another for years, it is as certain as there will be a Fourth of July that thousands of children and adults will be maimed and injured before two more weeks have passed, and that scores, perhaps hundreds, will have been killed.

Eyes will have been blinded, fingers blown off, legs and arms amputated, and faces deformed for life.

The great majority of the deaths will not be swift and painless, but they will be brought about by the lingering tortures of lockjaw, Tetanus is the Molock of our Glorious Fourth.

Out of 413 cases of lockjaw following the Fourth of July of 1903, investigation by a medical journal showed that there were only seven recoveries. Of the total number, 363 cases were caused by blank cartridges, a comparatively recent method of celebrating. This is what Dr. Edward Martin, Director of Health and Charities, has to say about lockjaw:

"It is more deadly than the bite of a mad dog, and death from it is equally painful and more horrible. This germ is a micro-organism. It exists everywhere, and particularly is rife in Pennsylvania. Warm weather is favorable to its propagation, and the Fourth of July is its harvest. It exists in the earth It lives in dirty streets. It will exist, but will not flourish or grow, in air.

"Boiling water does not destroy it; neither does freezing weather kill it Tetanus germs, placed upon wood, have been known to last for ten years, and a splinter from the wood entering a man's hand at the end of that time proved fatal.

"Every case of tetanus that develops within five days is fatal The germs thrive and fatten upon ths apparently trival wounds inflicted by the wad of a blank cartridge, just as it does upon the dead tissue around a burn where other germs eat up the oxygen and thereby protect the tetanus germ I would rather have a boy of mine shot through the hand with a 32 calibre bullet than wounded with a blank cartridge wad.

But, of course, no one expects that children and parents will observe the warnings of the physicians on the Fourth of July, and on every anniversary of the Declaration of Independence there are more Americans killed than fell in the battle of Bunker Hill.

Conditions were somewhat better in Philadelphia last year than they had been for several years previous, only nine persons dying of lockjaw and 525 being hurt.

The proper thing to do, if you receive a wound from a toy pistol or any other Fourth of July agency, is to go with all speed to the nearest hospital, instead of endeavoring to treat the injury yourself. The ordinary antiseptics are absolutely worthless so far as tetanus is concerned. You will find the medical staff's at the hospitals expecting you, and they will not even say: "I told you so."—North American.

Bar Association.

Bedford, Pa. June 28.—The eleventh annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar association opened at Bedford Springs hotel Tuesday afternoon. There were more than two hundred members in attendance and this number will be increased to three hundred before the close of the session, Thursday night. Henry C. Niles, president of the association, delivered his address at Tuesday afternoon's session. The address was a resume of the last legislature and touched upon the commission for the codification of the divorce law; the game laws, which were dealt with in a humorous manner; the mechanic's lien law, and the appropriation for the dedication of the new capitol.

Particular reference was made to the preamble of the act. The most important part of the address dealt with the failure of the last legislature to pass the legislative and senatorial apportionment bills and the personal registration law. He touched upon the political situation in the state.

The remainder of the afternoon session was devoted to reports of committees. At the evening session, Charles A. Gardner, of New York, delivered an address on the constitutional powers and discretion of the president.

A Central Conductor Meets Death at Avis.

Elmer Campbell, a New York Central conductor, was so horribly injured at Avis Tuesday afternoon that he died in a few minutes. He was the conductor on what is known as the "roustabout," an engine that works in the Avis and Jersey Shore yards, and shortly after 1 o'clock he was climbing down over the rear of the tender while the engine was running backward and slipped and fell to the track. The engineer did not see him fall but stopped the engine before it had passed entirely over him. He was picked up in a dying condition, his body being almost cut in two at the abdomen. The crew started to take him to Jersey Shore but he expired before reaching there.

He was about 40 years old and leaves a wife. He was a prominent member of the M. E. church at Avis and had a host of friends who will be terribly shocked to hear of his tragic death. He was the son of James Campbell of Jersey Shore and had been a railroader for many years.

W. LAIRD HARRIS.

Recent Death of one of Lewisburg's Prominent Citizens.

In a recent issue we made mention of the death of W. Laird Harris, of Lewisburg, a brother of Mrs. F. Potts Green, of this place, who died Saturday, June 17th The Lewisburg Chronicle gives the following excellent account of his life.

Mr. W. Laird Harris, one of Union county's most prominent and noted among its wealthiest citizens, died on Saturday after an illness of some months. Mr. Harris had been ailing for some time and his death was the result of a general breaking down of the system.

William Laird Harris, son of James and Sarah Belle Harris, was born in East Buffalo, on what is now known as the Philip Frederick farm, August 24th, 1820, and died June 17th, 1905, aged 85 years.

When but a mere child Mr. Harris was taken by his uncle William who gave him the education that has so well carried him on in his business life. After leaving school Mr. Harris for a while was a clerk for Wm. Nesbit, of Lewisburg, and from there accepted a clerical position with Wm. Young, of Mifflinburg, later going to Lewistown, where he remained until 1845, when his uncle died He then took charge of the farm, where he resided until his death.

He held the office of Justice of the Peace, School Director and Auditor many years in East Buffalo and served them all in an unusually good manner and was always loved and respected by all his acquaintances. His views on business questions were always eagerly sought for and his ideas were invariably found to be sound and correct.

On March 26, 1863, Mr. Harris became a stock holder in the Union National Bank of Lewisburg, becoming a director of that institution January, 1875, and was for many years President of the Board of Directors, and his keen insight and masterful manner increased the business of the bank—his genial, kindly ways bringing him hosts of friends which he retained to the day of his death.

He was also connected for many years with the Union County Turnpike Company, being for a long time its President and advisor. As such he was an ardent and enthusiastic worker for the good of the association. While a member of this company he was never absent from a meeting and at their annual dinner held at Lochiel, it was always his privilege and pleasure to carve the turkey and preside which he did in a graceful manner.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the cemetery chapel, the services being conducted by Rev. Blood, of the Christian church, At the grave the services were in charge of the Masonic Fraternity, of which he was a member for many years. The pall bearers were Messrs. John S. Griffin, Philip Frederick, T. N. Reber, T. C. Thornton, H. Ever Spyker, and J. W. Zellers.

Deceased is survived by two sisters, viz: Mrs. F. Potts Green, of Bellefonte, and Anna B. Harris, of Lewisburg

Declines Election to Head Dickinson.

The vacancy in the presidency of the Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, caused by the death of Dr. E. J. Gray, has not yet been filled. The Rev. W. C. Eveland, of Bloomsburg, who, on June 9, was chosen president at a special meeting of the old Board of Directors, Thursday declined to accept that election, preferring to permit the new directors, who met Friday evening and were in session until midnight, to vote for whom they pleased.

When thus released, a majority of those present decided to postpone election, some directors being absent. Clarence E. McCloskey was elected dean of the faculty and given full power to act until the election of a president.

Rev. Emory M. Stevens, pastor of Pine Street Methodist church, Williamsport, refused to allow his name to be presented as a candidate, although, it is stated that there was a strong sentiment among the directors in favor of Mr. Stevens when it became known that Dr. Eveland had declined.

Professor McCloskey, who was elected dean of the faculty will have charge until a president is elected, which will be done at a meeting of the directors to be called by the president when he deems it wise.

A Remarkable Old Man.

Port Matilda can boast of perhaps the most remarkable man in the county in the person of William Lewis, who next January will be 91 years old. Notwithstanding his age he shoulders his axe and with dinner bucket in hand walks two miles to the mountain, cuts and peels one cord of paper wood every day, for which he receives $2.00 a cord, and walks two miles back to his home in the evening. This he has done all summer and is doing now hot as the weather is, and he doesn't consider it anything remarkable, either. But where is there another man in the county, or state even of his age, who could do likewise. — Bellefonte Watchman.

ENGLISH GOLD LEAF.

The Reason Its Manufacturers Pack It In Bibles.

"James," said the English gold manufacturer, "we are hout of Bibles. Go downtown and buy six dozen."

James in due course returned with the Bibles in a handcart. They were taken from him by three men, their covers were torn off, and the pages were trimmed with sharp knives down to a certain small size. Then these little reduced papers were sewed together into a multitude of small books.

The small books were distributed among the hands, and in them the firm's output of gold leaf was packed—between every two Biblical leaves a leaf of gold.

"It seems irreverent, not to say sacrilegious, I know," said the head of the firm, "but we halways do so. We have done so for generations. Gold leaf is halways put on the market in little books made of Bibles.

"Why? I'll tell you why. Gold leaf must be packed between printed instead of plain pages, for the reason that it would slip out of plain pages, which are too smooth for it, whereas the indentations made by the types on the printed pages are just sufficient to hold the leaf in place firmly. That's why printed pages are used.

"We choose among all printed pages Bible ones, for the reason that the Bible is the best printed book a-going. The type is more evenly set, and the printing is finer than in any other work, and we need the best typesetting and printing in our business, you know, for any roughness or unevenness is apt to tear the gold leaf.

"That's why all English gold leaf is packed in Bibles. It's a necessary thing to do, but all the same I've often wondered that the churches 'ave never gotten after us gold leaf manufacturers for our hirreverence."—London Chronicle.

SECRETS OF THE HAND.

Things That Are Revealed to the Touch of the Blind.

The handshake of some people makes you think of accident and sudden death. Contrast this ill boding hand with the quick, skillful, quiet hand of a nurse whom I remember with affection because she took the best care of my teacher. I have clasped the hands of some rich people that spin not and toil not and yet are not beautiful. Beneath their soft, smooth roundness what a chaos of undeveloped character!

All this is my private science of palmistry, and when I tell your fortune it is by no mysterious intuition or gypsy witchcraft, but by natural, explicable recognition of the embossed character in your hand. Not only is the hand as easy to recognize as the face, but it reveals its secrets more openly and unconsciously. People control their countenances, but the hand is under no such restraint. It relaxes and becomes listless when the spirit is low and dejected, the muscles tighten when the mind is excited or the heart glad, and permanent qualities stand written on it all the time.

As there are many beauties of the face, so the beauties of the hand are many. Touch has its ecstasies. The hands of people of strong individuality and sensitiveness are wonderfully mobile. In a glance of their finger tips they express many shades of thought. Now and again I touch a fine, graceful, supple wristed hand which spells with the same beauty and distinction that you must see in the handwriting of some highly cultivated people. I wish you could see how prettily little children spell in my hand. They are wild flowers of humanity and their finger motions wild flowers of speech.—Helen Keller in Century.

Funny Stories.

"Ha, ha!" said the jovial man as he slapped an acquaintance on the back. "I'm glad to see you. I have one of the funniest stories on record, and you are just in time."

"I don't care for it," was the candid reply. "You see there is often a pathetic side even to humor. I have just been out with my architect, and he showed me three of the funniest stories I ever saw. If I hadn't been paying for them I'd have laughed myself silly."

CARE OF BOOKS.

Marginal notes are usually superfluous and undesirable.

Corners should not be turned down or leaves folded in halves.

Exposing books to heat or strong sunlight warps the binding.

Never bend back the covers of a book, but keep them both level.

Do not turn a book on its face or place any weight on an open book.

Never open a large book from the ends or cover, but from the center.

Bookcases should not be placed against outside walls on account of the probable dampness.

A blunt knife of ivory, wood or metal should be used for cutting new books, not a sharp instrument.

If any liquid be spilt on a book, wipe it off at once gently with a soft cloth or absorb it with blotting paper. Do not dry it by a fire.

Dragging a book out from the shelf by the binding at the top is hurtful. If books are wedged in too tightly in a case they become shabby.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because It's for One Thing Only and Bellefonte is Learning This.

Nothing can be good for everything.

Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They're for sick kidneys.

They cure backache, every kidney ill.

Here is evidence to prove it:

Mrs. James A. Miller, of Tyrone, Pa., living at 1828 Columbia Ave., says: "My husband suffered from rheumatism for years, but it was only a short time ago that he began to complain continually about his back. It kept aching worse and worse until at last he had to lay off work and called in a doctor who told him he had lumbago. His physician gave him some kind of medicine, but it did him no good. One day when he was lying on the lounge unable to move without screaming with pain, a neighbor who dropped in advised him to try Doan's Kidney Pills. He got a box and they certainly have given him surprising relief. They did him so much good that I know he has no hesitation in recommending them to anyone suffering as he did."

Plenty more proof like this from Bellefonte people. Call at F. Potts Green's drug store and ask what his customers report.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

The Happy Home.

Happiness must be founded on health. Where there is ill-health there will surely be unhappiness. The happiness of many a home has received its downfall at the table, spread with rich and dainty foods. The first symptoms of disease of the stomach are ignored as being disagreeable but not dangerous. Presently dyspepsia or some other form of disease fastens on the stomach.

At any stage Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. But the cure is quicker if the "Discovery" is used in the earlier stages of disease. If you have any symptoms of diseased stomach use "Golden Medical Discovery" and be cured.

"I feel that I would be doing an injustice to you if I did not send you a statement of my case," writes Mrs. David W. Guice, of Hamburg, Franklin Co., Miss. "I had liver complaint and indigestion. Everything that I ate disagreed with me. I suffered all the time with swimming in my head; heart beat too fast; my feet and hands were cold all the time. Did not sleep well at all. Was able to get about but very little. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' in May, 1897, and by December I could begin to get about very well. Have been doing my work ever since. Feel better than I have for several years."

To the Pacific Coast—to California, Oregon, Washington—round-trip, long transit and return limits, liberal stop-over privileges.

The rate is practically on the basis of one fare for the round trip. Of course, if you wish to visit both California and Oregon or Washington, the cost is slightly more.

These reduced rates are in effect on certain dates in months of May to October, inclusive. They apply from all Eastern points via Chicago, St. Louis or Memphis gateways. The Rock Island System will take you up in either Chicago or St. Louis, or at hundreds of other Middle West points and carry you to the Coast in through Standard or Tourist Sleepers with unexcelled Dining Car service. The Rock Island also affords a choice of routes: on the "Scenic" route you can stop off in Colorado—see Salt Lake City—visit Yellowstone National Park; on the "Southern" route you can go via El Paso, thru New Mexico, then "up coast" to San Francisco and on to Portland or Seattle if desired.

In short, these Pacific Coast excursions offer an unusually good chance to see our western country in a comprehensive manner.

If you desire to go only as far as Colorado, there are excursion rates in effect to that section and return, all summer long, specially reduced June 30 to July 4, August 12 and 13, and August 30 to September 4. Extension trips to Ogden or Salt Lake and return at low cost also.

From September 15 to October 31, 1905, one-way tourist or "colonist" tickets will be on sale to California and the Pacific Northwest—about half regular fare.

If interested, send name and address on this coupon, designating which booklet wanted and to what point you plan to go. Name probable date of start also, so we can advise definitely with respect to rates, etc.

JOHN W. HILL AGAIN ARRESTED.

Philadelphia, June 24.—It is probable that the campaign to be inaugurated against the republican organization in this city will not begin until September. It was announced Friday that the city party, which is backed by the committee of seventy, will make no nominations for county officers next fall. The republicans have already named their ticket but it has been suggested that the nominees withdraw and a new set of nominations be made because of the prominence of the candidates in the gas lease fight. If this suggestion is adopted it is probable that the republicans will not name a new ticket until September.

The city party in a few days will put 5,000 men at work making a canvas of voters for the entire city for the purpose of purging the registration lists of all bogus names. This canvas will be entirely independent of that made by the 1,000 assessors in the employ of the city. As soon as each independent canvasser completes his work he will visit the official city assessor for the division which he has canvassed and notify him of the changes to be made. If the official assessors do not comply with the request of the city party canvassers criminal proceedings will begin.

Philadelphia, June 24.—For the second time this week John W. Hill, former chief of the bureau of filtration, was arrested Friday on charges of forgery and falsifying certain books and papers for the purpose of defrauding the city of Philadelphia. After a hearing lasting nearly six hours he was held in $2,000 bail for trial. His arrest Friday was a great surprise, coming so close on his statement of innocence of forgery and falsification of records, on which charges he was held in $8,000 on Wednesday.

The principal witness against Mr. Hill Friday was H. F. Garrett, a former employee of the filtration bureau. Evidence was produced tending to show that estimates of the done by Daniel J. McNichol, a contractor, were padded, and that the city was defrauded out of about $40,000. Counsel for the defense claimed that the evidence produced did not prove Mr. Hill guilty of the offenses charged.

There were many rumors afloat Friday that as a result of the arrest of Mr. Hill other persons of prominence but in municipal affairs will be arrested, but up to late Friday night nothing developed.

Mayor Weaver Friday decided on a special session of city councils to take up the matter of city finances and to consider propositions for the removal of dangerous railroad grade crossings.

"The righ time to do the right thing, is at the right time." Now, is the right time for securing the best lecturers, the best entertainers and the best concerts for the coming Star Course of 1905-6. While the course last year was a success, in the pleasure it gave to the patrons, to the promoters, it was not a success financially, owing largely to the failure of the course of the season before. The W. C. T. U. however, were in no way responsible for that, as they had simply rented the hall to a Bureau agent, who failed to carry out his contract. This season, we desire to bring only the best to be had in the Lyceum field. Are you interested in providing the best for the young people of your family, and their friends? The better we can make the world outside, the easier it will be for our own to do right.

FISHING FOR BASS.

The Season is Now Open—The Sport Not What it Used to Be.

The good old days when black bass were plentiful in the waters of this part of the state, seems to have passed away. This game fish has been almost exterminated from the streams of Centre county; and fishermen are not anticipating much sport in bass fishing this season. There is no reason, however, why bass should not again become very plentiful in our streams within the next few years, as they are frequently being restocked with bass fry, and if given the proper protection, toward which end everything possible will be done, the rivers should again teem with these noble fish.

The passing of bass in the river is attributed to various causes, viz: Planting carp in the streams, which fish devour the spawn and young fish; the use of dynamite and other explosives, the pollution of the rivers with poisonous sewerage, and use of various illegal devices, and the former extended season which opened too early in the year when many fish were taken in the spawning season.

It is little wonder that being beset by their numerous foes, the black bass almost entirely disappeared from streams. As this is the time of year when much fishing is done with outlines, the following section of the fish law is given below for the information of these fishermen:

It shall be lawful from sunset to sunrise only to catch eels, catfish, carp and suckers, in waters not inhabited by brook trout, by means of outlines. Provided, that each outline shall have attached to it a tag with the name and address of the owner clearly marked thereon; and in waters inhabited by trout, it shall be lawful to use single lines, having one hook only to each line, for the capture of eels, catfish, carp and suckers. Provided, that all lines be weighted, so that the hook shall rest upon the bottom; and that cut or dead bait only shall be used on the hooks of all outlines.

Any fish other than those named above when caught upon such lines, shall immediately be removed and set free in the water from which taken. The possession of any other kind of fish than eels, catfish, carp and suckers by anyone operating such lines, shall be prima facie evidence that said fish was taken illegally.

Any person violating any of these provisions shall, on conviction be subject to a fine of twenty-five dollars and shall forfeit to the fish commission the appliance used.

Dipnets can only be used legally during the months of March, April and May, and in October, November and December therefore those persons who do not wish to get into trouble will refrain from using these nets during the present high water or any other time during the summer. The use of all kinds of nets should be prohibited in taking fish of any kind, as these devices are largely responsible for the present scarcity of the fish in our streams.

From Farm to Pulpit.

Rev. J. E. Morris, of this city, who is pastor of the A. M. E. church here; placed upon the Bellefonte market Saturday, the first string-beans of the season. He believes in industrial as well as mental education. He was raised on the farm of the late Jacob Staman, Washington, Lancaster county, Pa., one of the most successful farmers of that county.

Last year the Rev. was second in placing string beans on the market, but this year he is first, these are the last beans the public will have an opportunity of getting from Rev. Morris' bean patch, as he has but a small lot attached to the parsonage, hence, does not raise produce for the market, but merely for out door exercise which all men need, and the little stuff that he raises can all be consumed on his own table.

Love of Our Game.

Some apprehensive party has expressed the opinion that the American people will outgrow baseball and an editor has been thoughtless enough to print it. Thoughtless, inconsiderate; yes, and unpatriotic. Almost immoral. How dare an editor give publicity to an insidious breath hostile to one of our basic institutions! By all the memories of "one-old-cat" and "town ball," how can a man utter such a thing and an editor circulate it? The American people rise up in the grand stand, so to speak, and resent it with a mighty hiss. Life would not be worth living to the glorious, free and independent spirit without baseball. We are a nation of rooters. We must root or die. Baseball will live as long as the nation. When the ghouls get to dancing on the diamonds there will be none of us to witness it. Baseball will be the last relic to crumble.

Norway's Secession.

The editor of the Nordiske Blade, Mr. Sigurd Folkestad, writes for Collier's of June 24 on the reasons for Norway's independence and in part says:

The main reason why King Oscar was dethroned is that he represented aristocratic Sweden against democratic Norway and therefore was unable to carry out the thoughts of freedom, equality and sovereignty which are expressed in the constitution of Norway.

The Swedish democratic people love Norway. Thousands of them have emigrated to Norway, being now some of its most industrious and democratic citizens; and as many are working there from time to time, the ideas of freedom, self-possession, and social-political betterment spread through them to every part of Sweden. It is Norway's hope for Sweden that the Swedish aristocracy soon may be put out of power. In this wish the great authors, the best politicians, the liberal party, and the masses of the democratic classes in Sweden unite with Norway.

Sweden is quickly approaching the day when its industrious, intelligent people will break the power by which the Swedish aristocracy are now holding them under an unworthy yoke.

And at last: Norway, the land of the Vikings, who nine hundred years ago discovered America, which they called "Vinland"—Norway, the land of the explorer Fridtjof Nansen, the authors Ibsen and Bjornson, the musician Edv. Grieg, and of the hundreds of scientists who for the past century have participated illustrously in the European work of culture—the fatherland of one of the most intelligent and able elements of the United States—is too free and self-respecting to be ruled by a Swedish aristocracy.

Old Man Would Enter Lists.

W. R. McKinnie, of Los Angeles, who is fifty three years old, proposes a novelty in the shape of contests in running jumping and wrestling for men of his class and wants to compete at the Portland Fair Athletic events. Mr. McKinnie is willing to wager $100 that no other man of his age can do a Graeo-Roman wrestling act which he practices He says he was born in Ohio, raised in Iowa, never trained in any gymnasium, never fell into the temptations that beset the young man, never belonged to any church. He does not know to which of these circumstances he owes his present wonderful physical development, which is certified to by several doctors' certicates.

Remember the Slocum.

Collier's for June 24 editorially says: The season has arrived when thousands of human bodies are packed on floating firetraps, and taken, for a consideration, hither and yon, to enjoy temporary refreshment on the water. Most of them, happily perhaps, will be undashed by memories of the Slocum. Probably the management of not one steamer in the whole blessed domain has been changed radically on account of the casual investigation undertaken after the Slocum horror. The foundation truth is that the people don't care enough about the risks they run to make the authorities serious enough in their control. Steamboat owners can make more money by packing swarms of passengers on the paddle-boxes by making life preservers out of any metal that happens to be accessible and cheap, and by dividing a little with the Government inspectors. These inspectors thus are able to provide greater comforts for their homes, the owners swell the number of the prosperous, the public crowds the steamer to the sinking point, and everybody is happy. Why, therefore, do we complain? Perhaps it is perverse, but the sight of so many thousands of children and women put in danger of fatal accidents by fire or wreck does not leave us as comfortable as no doubt we ought to feel. We can not help wishing that a horrible and entirely unnecessary slaughter produced some little alteration in the system by which money is coined in violation of ordinary precautions enjoined by law.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life,

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives.

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions

One means of a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

A business is judged by its reading matter.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

NO PAPER NEXT WEEK.

In accordance with a time honored custom with the several newspapers in Bellefonte, there will be no issue of the Republican next week, Fourth of July week. Let us throw aside business cares and each and all indulge in the pleasure and delight of an old fashion Fourth of July. Snow Shoe extends to her friends and neighbors a hearty invitation to join with them in their celebration of the "Fourth" and the Undine Fire company of Bellefonte will provide unlimited fun and enjoyment at their picnic at Hecla Park.

—While at his farm in Brush mountain last Sunday Adam L Dickson found a land turtle upon whose shell he had carved his name with the date on June 19, 1880, or exactly twenty-five years before. It was a singular coincidence that he picked up the turtle again just a quarter of a century after he had first found it. The turtle looked as young as it used to be.

This makes by far the largest peach orchard in our county. Averaging a bushel to a tree when two years older—being three years now—would not be a mean crop and a handsome investment; better than Angora goats.

It is supposed that he threw his left leg loosely against a heavily charged electric light wire that ran close to where he worked and had the current transferred to his body through a nail in his shoe. A small hole was burned into left foot where a deadly current entered and the thumb of the right hand was badly burned by the current in trying to force its way out. The unfortudate man's skull was crushed by the long fall to the pavement so that his right eye was knocked completely from its socket. Mr. Williams was about twenty-five years old and was married to Miss Mary Conley, of Johnstown, who with his five year old daughter was visiting in Nittany at the time of the horrible accident.
